WEEQUAHIC PARK TRACT

NEWARK, N. J.

A HANDSOME RESIDENTIAL DEVELOPMENT

COME AND SEE IT

Two Factors That Insure Largely Increased Values—Accessibility and Location Opposite Weequahic Park

This Tract Is Almost as Accessible from New York as It Is from Market and Broad Streets, Newark. This Property Is Directly Opposite Weequahic Park, One of the Handsomest Park Developments in Essex County. Accessible Residential Property Opposite Large Public Breathing Places Is Bound to Become Extremely Valuable with the Natural Upbuilding of the City. Paved Boulevards with Parkways in Centre. Five-Foot Cement Walks. Shade Trees Planted Throughout. Sewer, Water and Gas Mains Laid with Connections to Curb. Electric Lights.

THE Lehigh Valley "Park View" Passenger Station is located at the property. This Railroad is operated over the Pennsylvania R. R. tracks and ferries to New York.

UPON completion of Pennsylvania R. R. Tunnels under the North River, this development is only twenty minutes from New York City, WITHOUT CHANGE OF CARS ON JERSEY SIDE.

Can You Appreciate What the Prices Will Be in the Near Future of Desirably Located, Restricted Property as Convenient to New York as This Is?

The Rapid Growth and Increased Values of Roseville and East Orange Properties Are Due Almost Entirely to Convenient Transportation Facilities with New York. Largely Increased Valuations of Bronx Properties Is Another Case in Point. One House Allowed on Each Plot. No Houses More Than Two and One-Half Stories. No Flat Roofs. Houses to Be Built Uniform Distance from Street Line.

Seymour and Chadwick Avenues, Two Family Houses Permitted

GLIDDENITES DRIVE 14 DAYS

TOURISTS WILL REST FOUR DAYS IN 2,530 MILE TRIP.

Chairman Hower Has Received Thirty-two Entries and Expects Many Others—Contest Starts From Detroit on July 12; Ends at Kansas City July 29.

Frank B. Hower of Buffalo, chairman of the contest board of the American Automobile Association, declares he believes this year's Glidden tour will be the greatest one ever conducted. He has made official announcement that he has received thirty-two paid entries for the tour—which includes the contests for the Glidden, Hower and Detroit trophies. He says this is within two of being four times as many entries as were on hand in the corresponding dates of 1907 and 1908, and he expects the number will be materially increased.

Several more entries are sure to be made from Detroit, as the dealers and manufacturers of the automobile making metropolis guaranteed fifteen entries when Chairman Hower agreed to have this year's tour start from Detroit. The contest, which was spoken of at first as the point from which the tourists would begin their journey. So far the cars from Detroit include four E-M-F, three Chalmers-Detroit, two Buick, one Humber and one Rapid. The other entries are four Pierce, four Premier, three Maxwell, three Moline, two Marmon, two Stoddard-Dayton, one American Simplex, one Jewel and one Glide. Entries close on June 15 at the regular fee of $500, but may be made from then until July 1 at $300 a car.

Those who wonder where all the cars that are sold go and why there is so much enthusiasm in the West about the tour will be enlightened by a few excerpts from a report made by Pathfinder Dai H. Lewis to Chairman Hower. Lewis declares this will be the greatest tour that this or any other country ever has known. He says: "The interest in the West is intense. Throughout the States of Wisconsin, Minnesota, Nebraska, Colorado and Kansas every farmer that the pathfinders talked to either had an automobile or was talking about buying. Kansas City is the third largest automobile distributing point in the country and the dispensers of motor vehicles in that city claim that this is accounted for by the immense demand of the farmers."

One town passed through between Denver and Kansas City, namely Ellis, has a population of 1,600 persons and out of that number more than 100 of them own automobiles. The tour is going to be watched with a great deal of interest and those whose cars participate will reap a harvest in the section traversed. Pathfinder's automobile has been driven about two hundred miles more than required by the route. These figures for the tour will be reduced about one hundred miles by changing the route so as to go from Minneapolis to Fort Dodge and Omaha by way of Mason City instead of Mankato, as the pathfinder went. The reason of this changing of the route is urgent, and it will be done if the roads the other way are satisfactory. To go by way of Mankato would mean another day must be added to the tour and the start made one day earlier, which would be Sunday, else the two days at Denver now planned would have to be reduced to one day. From Denver the greatest sight-seeing of the tour is to be enjoyed, including trips to the Garden of the Gods, through Grand Canyon and other points of interest. The Denver Club has raised a fund of $15,000 for the entertainment of the tourists, and to shorten the stay there would cause great disappointment. Another good reason for routing the ground between Minneapolis and Omaha is that the route is now laid to Fort Dodge by way of Mankato and Blue Earth City is over the basin of a prehistoric lake or sea, and when it rains there is no bottom to the roads. All hands wanted a rest after reaching Kansas City and the route was postponed for a while, there being everything to gain by this, as the roads of Iowa are now improving rapidly.

As nearly as can be figured out, with the distance by the route not yet surveyed given as an estimate, the itinerary of the tour will be as follows:

July 12—Detroit to Kalamazoo, Mich.	142.2
July 13—Kalamazoo to Chicago	123.8
July 14—Chicago to Madison, Wis.	175.0
July 15—Madison to La Crosse	134.4
July 16—La Crosse to Minneapolis, Minn.	176.0
July 17 and 18—At Minneapolis	126.0
July 19—Minneapolis to Fort Dodge, Ia.	162.0
July 20—Fort Dodge to Omaha, Neb.	125.0
July 21—Omaha to Kearney, Neb.	30.0
July 22—Kearney to Julesburg, Colo.	200.0
July 23—Julesburg to Denver, Colo.	204.0
July 24 and 25—At Denver	175.0
July 26—Denver to Fort Collins, Colo.	125.0
July 27—Fort Collins to Greeley, Colo.	100.0
July 28—Greeley to Kansas City, Mo.	300.0
July 29—Kansas City to Kansas City, Mo.	232.8
Total	2,530.2

How different this schedule is from the mud-plugging siege to which Pathfinder Lewis will be subjected. The running power E-M-F have just passed can be partly surmised from the fact that they left Detroit on April 22, they made but seven miles from May 1 to May 20. They rested only three days on the pathfinder trip, but the greatest rest the pathfinders is shown by the fact that they made the 205 mile journey from Fort Morgan to Denver on May 12. HOW CITY SCHOOLS ARE BUILT.

They Cost on an Average About $180 for Each Pupil.

Twenty-four new school buildings are now under construction in the city of Greater New York and will be ready for service by January, 1910. Twelve are in Brooklyn, seven in Manhattan, two in the Bronx and three in Queens. All are of a high standard of construction and conform with the prevailing types—the hollow rectangle with large interior courts or the T shaped structure with outside courts.

In the entire city there are 522 public schools under the jurisdiction of the Board of Education. In the last five years ninety-six new buildings and 134 additions have been erected. Among the most important institutions opened since 1904 have been De Witt Clinton High School and Stuyvesant High School in Manhattan; Manual Training High School, Commercial High School and a part of Erasmus Hall High School in Brooklyn; Bryant High School in Queens and Curtis High School at New Brighton, Staten Island. Within the five year period 170 school sites have been acquired. Many of these are still unused for school purposes.

A school site on the lower East Side, exclusive of one lot which the city already owned, cost through condemnation $572,000. This is at the rate of over $12 a square foot. All the city school buildings of modern construction are built to be as nearly fireproof as it is possible to make them. The floors are of terra cotta blocks or of reinforced concrete. The ceilings are of plaster attached directly to metal lath, which in turn is attached to the steel beams that support each story.

The city allows the builder to use for interior trim any of four materials—oak, ash, cherry or birch. This gives the builder a chance to take advantage of the market and enables him to bid lower for a contract than would be possible if he were more rigidly restricted. The same principle applies in the specifications for the stairways, where the contractor may use either North River bluestone or asphalt treads, and for the wainscoting, where he may put in any of several varieties of white enameled or glazed brick.

A certain school containing fifty-three classrooms cost $1,236 a pupil. The total cost of the Morris High School, exclusive of the building site, was $562,000. It has accommodations for 2,630 pupils, and contains 2,679,500 cubic feet.

A recent report by Supt. Snyder gives some interesting figures on the cost of school buildings. A modern structure containing 100 classrooms cost $1,236 a pupil. CITY TO ENFORCE ITS CLAIMS.

To the Bed of Old Dutch Highways on Long Island.

On the calendar of the Supreme Court awaiting trial are a number of suits brought against the city of New York to determine the municipality's right, title and interest in the old Dutch roads on Long Island.

The first case on the list, which is to be tried within a few days, is a suit brought by the Roman Catholic Church of the Most Holy Trinity against the city of New York to compel it to grant title to a strip of land running through a small Catholic cemetery adjoining the Evergreen Cemetery in Brooklyn.

The suit involves the city's interest in an old Colonial thoroughfare that formed a part of the Bushwick road. This highway as well as others of the same origin was abandoned by the old city of Brooklyn many years ago when official city streets were laid out and the blocks between them were built up.

The city has never passed an ordinance relinquishing its right in the old Dutch highways, but on the other hand it has not asserted its claim of ownership until very recently. In the past any person who desired to erect a building on land that included a portion of any old Dutch road had merely to apply to the Sinking Fund Commission to obtain a release of the city's rights in the abandoned roadbed. The city's legal advisers were of the opinion that nothing was lost by signing a release.

When Comptroller Metz came into office he opposed this view, and since he has been on the job no releases have been signed. Metz maintained that there could be no necessity for the officials signing releases if the city's claim to the land were sufficiently valid to be enforced. If, on the other hand, the city held a definite claim, he argued, it certainly was poor policy for it to transfer the highway to a private owner.

To settle the matter definitely he had one of the experts in the Finance Department make an investigation. In his report the expert upheld the Comptroller's view. Following this official statement the Sinking Fund Commission ceased to give releases merely for the sake of the title companies refused to pass title to land so affected.

Accordingly when the Church of the Most Holy Trinity sought a release for that portion of the cemetery road running through its cemetery it applied in vain. To test the matter legally suit has been brought in the Supreme Court.

TRAITS OF TENNIS PLAYERS.

Characteristics of Some Leading Exponents of the Game.

Tennis players, like the devotees of all other branches of outdoor sport, have their peculiarities but in this case the characteristics seem to be more strikingly evident. Perhaps it is that the players are within easy range of the eye at all times, for the space covered by the court is so small that every move, twist, turn and facial expression may be watched. Not a player from the lowest grade to the foremost crack but has his likes and dislikes, his good and bad days as well as other faults and failings. The current issue of American Lawn Tennis has an interesting article on a few of the topnotchers. It says:

"To say that Champion Larned is a brilliant but erratic player is no longer true. Undoubtedly both qualities at one time applied to him but in the last two years his game has undergone a marked change and erraticism is not now characteristic of his play, at least in the very marked degree it once was. Brilliant he still is, but even that peculiarly has tempered. Possibly fewer dazzling streaks and less errors constitute his game to-day, but a splendid consistency is the change most evident."

Larned always was and always will be a nervous player. That quality was demonstrated in his match with M. J. G. Ritchie in the Davis cup preliminaries of 1908. In the first set Larned through over-anxiety dropped the first five games before he overcame his nervousness, and although he fell just short of making the game score even in the next three sets, Ritchie was outclassed. However, were it not apparent in his play you would never realize the existence of the champion's temperamental defect. For his face is expressive—his eyes tell of his nervousness, his mouth of his determination. He is a player who while winning or losing will remain a secret, for he wears a mask of absolute immobility while playing.

The case of our next best exponent of the game, the brilliant and nervous player from Larned's. Referred to frequently as the "lionhearted" Wright, the appellation is certainly fitting, for nervousness is unknown to him, a rival's lead is a stimulus, and the fear of his failure is his failure. Wright is primarily a fighter. A wonderful general, but with form far below the recognized standards, his great strength and remarkable resourcefulness have won for him many a match which seemed hopelessly lost. Most striking of all such instances was his match in December with N. E. Brookes during the Australian Davis cup series. But I should call Wright erratic. Defeat although unexpected have checked his career on his courts ever since. He became a topnotcher, and his almost total annihilation by Ritchie last year, followed by his magnificent experience in Australia, make him an uncertain factor. Few if any players are more interesting to watch than Wright. He became a topnotcher, and his almost total annihilation by Ritchie last year, followed by his magnificent experience in Australia, make him an uncertain factor. Few if any players are more interesting to watch than Wright. A wonderful general, but with form far below the recognized standards, his great strength and remarkable resourcefulness have won for him many a match which seemed hopelessly lost. Most striking of all such instances was his match in December with N. E. Brookes during the Australian Davis cup series. But I should call Wright erratic. Defeat although unexpected have checked his career on his courts ever since.
